

GRAS TO WEAR THE FAMOUS NEW ORLEANS JEWELS

Some fair Salt Lake girl contestant in the queen's contest of the Spring Frolic and Mardi Gras to be held at Auerbach Field, under the auspices of the Richard W. Young Post No. 20, April 24th to May 1st, will wear the famous jewels, consisting of crown, scepter, girdle, bracelets and necklace, which have adorned many fair queens in the historic Mardi Gras of New Orleans.

Through the efforts of Dr. Woodward B. Mayo, who has many influential friends in the southern metropolis, he has secured the famous jewels. These jewels have been out of the hands of their custodian only one before, at the time of the Rotary convention in Salt Lake, so that city has the honor for the second time.

When the jewels were brought here for the Rotary club convention they were insured for $10,000 and kept in the safe of J. F. Boes, Jeweler, who will again take charge of them. The jewels will be put on exhibition in his window as soon as they arrive. A special courier will leave New Orleans with the jewels and deliver them directly to Mr. Boes.

In the crescent city is it the highest honor to be crowned the queen of the Mardi Gras. Prominent business and large sums of money change hands. In one instance the candidate was backed for $50,000 and she won the crown.

Where in the past there has been some dissension between organized labor and the American Legion in different parts of the country, a big step has been taken in Salt Lake City for a close cooperation of the American Legion and the Salt Lake Federation of Labor in the matters of community interest, through a letter received at the Carnival committee headquarters of the Richard W. Young Post, from A. E. Herney, secretary of the Salt Lake Federation of Labor, in which he expresses the enthusiastic endorsement of all the labor members for the Spring Frolic and Mardi Gras to be held by the Richard W. Young Post No. 20 at Auerbach Field from April 24th to May 1st at Salt Lake City.

This endorsement marks the first milestone along the road of progress it may reach out nationally and bring together two great organizations to unite in harmony for the future betterment and welfare of the country.

It means much to Salt Lake and the state of Utah, as Mr. Herney, secretary, expresses it:

"We would be pleased to get in touch with yourself as the other posts of the city and state, as we feel there are a great many matters of community interest to both organizations."

MISS ENNIS FINISHES A SENTENCE

"The sewers of Europe are dumped over here," began Miss Isabel Ennis in one part of her speech to the board of estimate. Before she could finish the sentence she was interrupted by President La Guardia, who demanding that she apologize. This she did not do, but instead administered to Mr. La Guardia, and to the board in general a well deserved rebuke for the board's attitude on the teachers' salaries. In the calm of another week Miss Ennis finishes her sentence, as follows:

"The sewers of Europe are dumped over here—in the form of communism, anarchism, I. W. Wism—and in the parlance of the day it is up to the public school teachers of New York City to help stamp that out. You can't stamp out that menace without teachers; you won't have teachers unless you pay them a salary sufficient to live decently."

The whole is perfectly true. If any apology is due, it is from Mr. La Guardia to Miss Ennis.—The Sun and New York Herald.

CHANCES FOR A THIRD PARTY

Gone glimmering, thinks a contemporary, is all chance of a third party's ticket in the next national election since Senator Johnson refuses to lead it.

Possibly not. When the common sense Republicans have put in the field a presidential candidate and a national platform untroubled with any league of nations fantasies and when the common sense Democrats have done the same thing, is the belief universal that the unconvinced and unconvinced gentleman now in the White House still will be holding the fort. There is conviction as well among the Democrats that the inflexible gentleman is as unbendingly set upon a third nomination as he is upon a first covenant. His sublimity of solitude in both these resolves does but the more confirm him in them.

Wherefore it might come to pass that while the Republicans in the United States were trooping to the polls to vote for their party's candidates and platform, and likewise while the Democrats of the United States were trooping to the polls to vote for theirs, Mr. Wilson might be marshalling visions on the horizon under the music of voices in the air to storm the third term citadel.

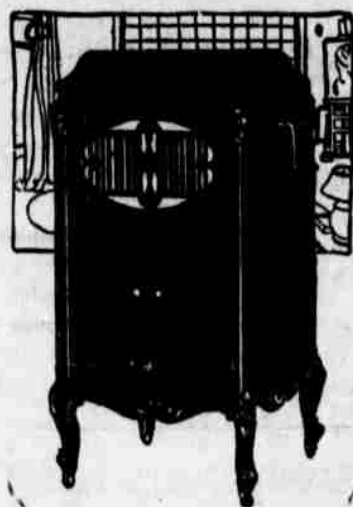

There is no glimmering chance for the third term—no more chance for it than for the covenant. But in this free country, still possessed of its political institutions, privileges and customs, there is always opportunity for anybody to run for president on some personally conducted party's ticket if he doesn't mind not getting the votes.—The Sun and New York Herald.

Maryland an Old State.
"Maryland, My Maryland," was one of the thirteen original states. In 1632 Cecilus Calvert, second Lord Baltimore, received from Charles I a charter conferring on him possession of the territory now forming the states of Maryland and Delaware. Thus he became a sort of feudal lord, in supreme authority over the colony. Maryland had a long list of proprietary and royal governors before it was organized as a state in 1777.

Milliner Named for Milan.
Before Paris became the mistress of modes, Milan gave the fashion to the world; hence the word milliner.

WILLIAM DUNCAN

Before he was an actor, William Duncan was an athletic instructor and a writer for physical culture magazines. He first appeared on the stage with Sandow, the strong man, and later toured the country at the head of his own dramatic company playing Hamlet. Today he is known throughout the world as a serial star and director. Upon completing "Smashing Barriers" Albert H. Smith, president of Vitaphone, furnished Mr. Duncan with a serial the production of which will cost $1,000,000.

"The Silent Avenger" is the title of the new serial. It was written by Albert E. Smith and Cleveland Moffett. In this Mr. Duncan is given ample opportunity to show his skill as a fancy shot pool player, expert on the tennis court and clever slight of hand performer. The thrills provide the star-director with material in which to demonstrate his strength and ability as an all-round athlete. He insists on realism and will assume great risks to stage a thrill as it should be performed. He will not use dummies or substitutes. If the thrill is in the script, Mr. Duncan insists that it can be performed and he does it regardless of the hazard.

His teacher, Ed. Keith Johnson, is equally courageous and follows William Duncan in the lead. They have been associated in several serials, including "The Man of Might" and "A Fight for Millions."
